What you don't know about your customers can hurt you. Which is why our sales force automation opens up every aspect of your sales operations for real-time viewing and analysis. Follow every lead. Track each deal through the pipeline. Understand where bottlenecks occur-- and why. With our sales force automation solutions, the knowledge and insight you need to succeed is immediately and transparently accessible.

Among other benefits, our service allows you to:

Seize all opportunities - new sales lead is immediately recorded, automatically routed and progress tracked in real time, no opportunity is ever missed, and no competitive challenge goes unnoticed.

Close more deals - individual members of your sales team always know precisely what the others are working on, they can act collaboratively to transform sales prospects into established customers.

Shorten the sales cycle - customize the application to support specific sales methodology you prefer. Because you determine which strategic goals or milestones are tracked, measured, and reported on, you're able to quickly locate and eliminate any bottlenecks that lengthen the sales cycle.

Forecast revenues accurately - the sales pipeline is both completely transparent and continually updated in real time, everyone from field sales personnel to the executive management suite possesses a clear reliable understanding of near-term future events, and can focus their resources accordingly.

Recognize "big picture" market trends - It's so easy to review, "slice and dice," or otherwise analyze current and historical sales data that you immediately spot changes in customer behavior or shifts in key market indicators. Because of this comprehensive contextual view of both past and current events, your sales organization organically responds to evolving customer needs.
